H. C. R. No. 28. Providing for the compilation and publication of a Legislative Manual; providing for the employment of the Parliamentarian of the House of Representatives, and fixing the compensation of said Parliamentarian; providing for a stenographer and compensation of said stenographer; providing for the appointment of a committee of two members of the Senate and three members of the House, and making appropriation for the purposes of this resolution.

Whereas, Each succeeding Legislature orders printed an entirely new set of Legislative Manuals; and

Whereas, There is in each new edition of the Legislative Manual a vast amount of unchanged matter carried over from the preceding Manual; and

Whereas, The continuation of such a practice will result in the useless expenditure of public funds; and

Whereas, The Legislative Manual now in use is incomplete; and

Whereas, The compilation and publication of a new and complete Manual with Perpetual Supplement is desirable; now therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, That immediately upon the adjournment of the Regular Session of the Forty-first Legislature, the Parliamentarian of the House of Representatives shall proceed to compile all necessary data for a Legislative Manual and Perpetual Supplement, which data shall contain the Constitution of the United States of America, and an index thereto; the Constitution of the State of Texas, and an index thereto; annotations to the Constitution of the State of Texas, and an index thereto; annotations to the Constitution of the State of Texas, and an index to said annotations; the Rules of the House of Representatives, and an index thereto; the Rules of the Senate and an index thereto; an outline showing Progress of a Bill, with variations, and an index thereto; the Declaration of Independence; the standing committees of the House and Senate; Jefferson's Legislative Manual, and an index thereto; the Legislative and Congressional Precedents, with an index thereto; Legislative Forms, and an index thereto; and such other data as may properly be included in a Legislative Manual.

Provided, that if a Special Session of the Forty-first Legislature should be called within thirty days after the adjournment of the Regular Session, then the Parliamentarian shall continue such work from day to day at such time when the Legislature is not in session.

The Parliamentarian shall receive the services in compiling said Manual the sum of ten ($10) dollars per day not to exceed six hundred ($600) dollars, and shall be authorized to employ a stenographer, who shall receive for services not to exceed two hundred and fifty ($250) dollars, said amounts to be paid upon sworn accounts, approved by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

There shall be a committee appointed consisting of two members of the Senate, appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, and three members of the House, appointed by the Speaker of the House, which committee shall supervise the work of said Parliamentarian and carefully inspect the data compiled by said Parliamentarian.

When the data hereinbefore specified is completed and has been approved by the committee provided for herein, there shall be printed for the use of the House and Senate 350 copies of said Manual, 200 copies to be bound in flexible morocco covering at a cost not to exceed fifty cents per copy, above the cost of the same books, in flexible cloth according to specifications and contract with the public printer.

Provided, further, that the name of each member and officer of the House and Senate be embossed upon the back of one copy of said Manual, said copy to be the property of the member or officer whose name is upon said copy. Three-fourths of said copies shall be for the use of the House and one-fourth for the use of the Senate, and they shall be paid for out of the contingent funds of the two houses in said proportion; provided, that the public printer shall not be paid for composition but one time.

Provided, further, that the compensation of the Parliamentarian of the House of Representatives for compiling said Manual, and the compensation of the stenographer, shall be paid for in the same proportion.

Said bound volumes to be in the hands of the members of the Legislature at the earliest possible moment.

Provided, further, that in addition to the 200 copies to be bound in flexible morocco, as herein provided, there shall be 100 paper-bound copies printed, and turned over to the Secretary of State for the use of the Legislature hereafter, and 50 copies to be delivered to the State Librarian for exchange with other State libraries. The members of the Press working as such in the Forty-first Legislature shall be provided with a copy of said Manual by the Secretary of State.

The sum of $3000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the contingent funds of the two houses for the salaries of the Parliamentarian and stenographer, and for the printing and binding of the Legislative Manual.

RELATING TO HOUSE BILL
NO. 495.

On motion of Mr. Beck, the following communication was ordered printed in the Journal:

Analysis of House Bill No. 495, Passed By House, Reducing License Fees.

The bill reduces license fees on passenger cars 50%.

Under the bill the gross license fees on passenger cars will amount to $6,902,347.87.

On commercial motor vehicles and trailers the fees are based alone on weight of vehicle and remain the same as at present.

The proceeds from these fees, under this House bill, will amount to $2,415,757.63.

Under the bill the total proceeds will be apportioned between the State Highway Department and the counties of the State of Texas as follows:

Counties will receive $7,506,273.59.

State Highway Department will receive $1,811,831.91.

The amount which counties will receive under House bill is approximately the same which they now receive under present law. The State Highway Department would receive under this bill, approximately $8,000,000 less than under the present law. The present law constitutes the automobile registration fees in the State Highway Department fund a maintenance fund for the upkeep of highways of the whole State. The Legislature has, by enactment of laws through license fees, provided a maintenance fund of approximately $9,700,000. This is cut down by the House bill to less than $2,000,000.

Maintenance at present is of first importance to the great majority of the counties of Texas. Because under any program construction is comparatively slow and in the majority of the counties there will be comparatively little construction. But with a maintenance fund of approximately $10,000,000 as is the case at present, the Highway Department can maintain the highways throughout the whole State. This the Department has done satisfactorily.

Cripple the Highway Department's maintenance fund and the great majority of the counties of Texas will be the sufferers through poor and inadequate maintenance of their highways.

The press carries the statement that it is understood there will be an increase in the gasoline tax, probably to four cents, but this is problematic. No one knows when such an increase in gasoline tax would take effect, even if such increase is made. However, it happens that the owner of the car who pays the registration fee is the same person who pays the gasoline tax. How will a reduction in the amount of the registration fee make him richer, if he has to make up this saving by corresponding increased expenditure for gasoline? The average car owner who uses his car regularly will pay more in increased price of gasoline than he will save in reduction of license fees. It will make little difference to him if you reduce what he is to pay on one hand and increase it on the other hand.

The purchaser of gasoline at retail pays the gasoline tax of course. Let us assume the owner of ordinary passenger car, under the proposed House bill, will save $7.50 in proposed reduction of license fees; if he uses his car regularly or to any great extent, his increased expenditure for gasoline on account of increase in the gasoline tax will no doubt amount to more than his saving on the registration fee.

Another thing: The larger counties will profit more by decreasing license fees than the smaller counties. For example, under the House bill the larger counties will retain out of license fees paid in by them under the proposed bill, about the same amount that they now retain under the present license fee law; but would pay into the State highway fund under the House bill several hundreds of thousands of dollars less than they now pay in.

The receipts of the Highway Department from license fees under present law amount annually to approximately $9,700,000. Of this amount ten largest counties in Texas pay in more than forty per cent; the other 240 counties pay in less than sixty per cent. This $9,700,000 constitutes a highway maintenance fund which the Highway Department distributes throughout the State to the several counties according to their needs and situation. The great majority of the smaller counties of Texas receive in the way of maintenance several times the amount which they pay into the highway fund from registration fees. Is this an unjust discrimination? The larger cities and counties draw trade and support from outlying counties; and it is fair they should contribute a larger share in proportion for the upkeep of highways of the counties which are tributary to them. Moreover, a license fee is not local. It is a State license entitling the owner of the vehicle to use all the highways and roads of the entire State. And it is true that more cars from the larger counties use the highways and roads of the smaller counties than cars from smaller counties use the highways and roads of the larger ones. There are more cars out of Houston using highways and roads of Fort Bend county and other counties in that region, than there are cars from Fort Bend county or the other counties, using the highways and roads of Harris county. The plan which has been built up by law and now in operation by the Highway Department of using the proceeds from the registration fees from the entire State as a State maintenance fund for the upkeep of roads in all parts of the State, seems to me to be fair; and if this policy of the law and practice of the department is upset by any license fee law which may be enacted by the Legislature, then much of the highway law will have to be rewritten and readjusted to meet such change in condition.

A study of the chart or table showing the amount of registration fees paid into the highway fund by each county in Texas with the amount of such fees now retained by the several counties, will be instructive; as would also be a study of a comparison of the same with the amount to be retained by the several counties of the State under the House bill, and the amount which would be received by the Highway Department from that source. Then, compare these with the amount of maintenance allotted to and expended in each county in the State by the Highway Department. These matters will have to be ironed out by the Legislature. I anticipate the Highway Department will be supplied with necessary funds to properly maintain and gradually improve all of the State highways and at the same time carry on a reasonable program of construction of durable roads.

CONE JOHNSON,
Highway Commissioner.
